

FAMILY PHYSICIAN NATIONAL CONVENTION IN BANGLORE, JAN 2005

Dear Doctor,

The Federation of Family Physicians' Association of India (FFPAI) is having its 9th National Convention (FPNATCON 2005) in Bangalore, India for the first time. The dates are 28th to 30th January 2005 and the venue is 'Jnana Jyothi Auditorium', Central College Campus, Palace Road, Bangalore, India. The convention will include satellite workshops in six other institutions. We expect the participation of 2000 and more doctor delegates from different parts of the country, and also international delegates. The sessions will be addresses by eminent doctors from India and abroad.

Family Physicians Association, Bangalore, a unit of FFPAI has the privilege of hosting this National Convention under the guidance and support of many senior family physicians, consultants, hospitals, institutions and medical associations in the city. Our membership exceeds 550 doctors and is the only professional body that is entirely dedicated to the continuing education of family physicians.

This being a prestigious international gathering, I am sure it would be a good and worth while opportunity for you to interact with the top doctors of the world. I would like you to kindly attend the meeting and be a part of our convention.

The brochure as well as the form are available in our website: <http://www.fpab.net/>

We are looking forward to your participation.

Thank you,

Dr. Srinath Herur,
Organising Secretary,
FPNATCON 2005.
